The blue ribbon was awarded to Bach. slor, who was ridden in dashing stype by Mrs. Allan Potts, one of the most pop-lar and accomplished horsewomen in the South, while the second honor fel to her younger sister, Mrs. Robert G. Shaw, who Pode her own horse, Queen Bee, Biewart Lee, on Pathinder, was third, while the favorite Kathleen, the pride of the Dulany stables, with Mrs. F. A. B.

Portman up, got the fourth ribbon.

The riding was excelent, and while
Mrs. Allan Potts and Mrs. Shaw, who tre so well known here, were loudly appauded, it was Mrs. Lee who evoked the greatest storm of approval. * Pathfinder, her mount, is a very nervous and spirited animal, and went at the hurdles with a dash that would have taken the ner of a less accomplished horsewoman. Her peack caught the crowd, and when after losing her hat she continued to clear jump after jump, they cheered her to the echo. Some one who did not know who the acomplished rider was yelled, "Hurrah for Straw Hat." and the crowd cook it up. She was easily the favorite. It was little wonder then that when the Judges "gave her the gate" because Path-finder bolted through the gate which had been left open through carelessness, that the crowd hissed. They hissed with a vengeance, and the judges said they had only sent her out that the horse might become more quiet. She soon returned, and, as stated, took third prize.

SOME JUMPING WAS FINE AND SOME WAS NOT

In the hunters' and jumpers' class immediately preceding this indies' class, there were twenty-five entries. So crowd-ed was the ring, that after the horses had-been brought in and looked over they were led out and brought back one At a time for a try over the tail bers. Several clumsy ones were in the class and afforded a deal of amusement, particularly one sagacious beast who pos threly refused to take the jumps, Climbed over them, letting himself down easy on the other side. Blizzard, in this class, jumped as if he had business on the other side, and Meadow Plume spiked the fence twice in his four jumps. Mount Orn was the horse which got excited and bolted. His rider swung on desper-ately, and put him over the jumps all light, but he didn't figure among the inners. First in this class was Guy ock, a gelding, which barely touched the top timbers as she went over; second was Skylark, possibly the cleanest jumper in the list, with Miss English third. These jumping spectacles have proven popular features at Richmond last events were all jumping, kept the prowd in the building until the very last libbon had been tied on. Harress events last night, too, attracted a great deal of favorable attention. The first event was horses in harness, class 8. Prince Henry was immediately removed from the eligible list by his bad behavior, and between Fashion, Act-a-Bit and Step-a-Bit the contest was close. The ribbons for the first three went in the order named, with Moscow, Mr. Drexel's horse, fourth.

Act-a-Bit again met Fashion in the gig-horse, class 20, and again Fashion heat him, winning the red, while the yellow had to satisfy Act-a-Bit. The blue went to good old David Harum, by many pro nounced the best all-round horse in th exhibition. This was an immensely popblar victory. And then the end came.

DANGER AT THE DOOR

BY CARRIAGES CROWDING

The situation in the front of the building last night was not only disagreeable; it was dangerous. Cabs and carriages were drawn up directly in front of the main exhit and formed a blockade, practically shutting off the outpouring crowd from the cars, it was necessary in order to reach the for-ward cars to bob under horses heads, take chances between wheels barely far enough apart for a person to pass, and to do astounding acrobatic feats. The horses, too, from long standing, were hervous and fretful. This state of affairs herwous and fretful. This state of affairs impers will bring out parctically all the hunters and jumpers in the stables. It is open to all and there are thiry into the forward cars and start for three entries. This will be reserved as to the forward cars and start for nome.

For two nights now this state of af-gairs has been the same. It was unastood that last night the evil would removed, but it had not been done, and the danger was still there. As for the car service it was as good as on Tuesday night, and the tremendous growd was handled easily and rapidly the many cars on hand when the came. The only complaint at all was against the summer cars which had been pressed into service despite the pood-natured as ever, and took what rovidence and the street rallway peo-le provided without a murmer,

MANY BEAUTIES THERE

AND LOVELY THEY WERE

In the boxes at the show were many women noted for their beauty. Mess May Handy was one of these, another was Mrs. Charles Dans Gibson, and there were many more famous beauties. The tollettes presented a shimmering, radiating color scheme, which was im-mensely effective when viewed across the arena. Worth was there and Red-kern was there in those mysterious and fetching combinations which give the horse his annual excuse to go on parade, and are so mystifying to man.

Society overrun the boxes early and then began to creep into the seats above The first four or five rows of the re-

The first four or five rows of the reserved seats presented a picture identical almost with that of the boxes, the only difference being an individualization.

The paddocks were crowded last night. The early comers flocked into the paddocks to take a cup of tea with King Horse in his own home. The horses of Mr. Droxel, which were not shown to-night, attracted wide attention. There was considerable disappointment that Lord and Lady Wootton were not seen in the four-in-hand class. These two in the four-in-hand class. These tw horses are two of the most admired ani mals which have appeared. Mrs. Albert Young's horses, too, are immensely pop-ular with the true lovers of horse flesh, as are the four exhibited by Mr. Allen

SUCCESS OF THE SHOW IS EVIDENT TO ALL

There will be another immensely attrac tive programme at the Horse Show to-night. The classes will bring out nearly all of the best of the horses in the build-ing, including Lord and Lady Wootten,

First to-night will come the roadsters, class 1. The sixteen entries will show sev eral horses which have not yet appeared Then will come the horses in harness class 4. In this class there is a splendid entry list. Fortune and Miss Fortune are in from Mrs. Young's string, Lord and Lady Wootton are in David Harum and Lord Radiant and Brownette and Carmencieta. These eight animals are looked upon as eight of the best ever seen in this city, and the contest will be closed between the four. Lord and Lady Wootton are looked to as the first prize

Combination harness and saddle horses class 10, will be next. This will bring out Lightfoot, Pathfinder, Telegram, Royal Rival, Black Prince and others of the best. It is expected that the contest will leave Lightfoot and Royal Rival in the money somewhere, possibly first and second. Ladies' turnout, Class 17, will bring out Act-a-Bit, Miss Fortune, Lady Marjorie and others of the best class. Act-a-Bit, who has already earned half a dozen ribbons, is expected to have an excellent chance at the ribbon in this class.

Next will come the pony show, the Lidputian end of the game. There are four entries in this class-Druid, Kris, Gipsy and Roanoke, Jr. They will be shown in harness, with children driving. The little fellows will come as a pleas ant relief after the straightaway bition of lusty borse flesh of the larger calibre. Druid is the smallest of all the ponies, being only thirteen hands high. He will be exhibited by Duncan Wright.

Park Tandems, Class 11, brings out ten Pairs, of which Lord and Lady Wootton, Fortune and Miss Fortune, Act-a-Bit and Step-a-Bit, David Harum and mate, whirl and Fashion, and others will be shown. This will be another nerve racker for the judges. These borses in every class they have met have always proven a hard proposition for the judges. because of their general excellence
